KNOX LOOKING BETTER THAN IT DID SATURDAY

There has not been any change in the plans of the Knox Divide management and sinking on the ledge continues under the direction of George Badgett. The hole has reached a depth of 17 feet and free gold continues to show in the panings. The hole is open to inspection.

Spasmodic Sermos.

The world may owe every man a living but most of us have a good deal of trouble in getting it.

MOTORISTS FAIL TO RETURN HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Flinn with Miss Helen Sanderson, Mrs. Flinn's sister, and Miss Helen Flinn, of Washington, D. C., are missing and a relief car has been sent out to search for them.

The party left sometime Sunday the shipping agency the firm of "The a property at Mina in which M. Flinn is a large stockholder. In course of conversation Flinn said he was going by way of Cloverdale, a shorter but less traveled route than the one usually followed and where an accident might occur without coming to the knowledge of other travelers who usually use the more circuitous road. Mr. Flinn expected to return this evening. When he failed to appear, no alarm was felt for the party that it was thought he might have stopped over at Mina. This morning the party was not home and no word had been heard from them, so friends started inquiries with the result that it was found that Flinn had never reached the mine in the Sierrita Park. At 11 o'clock this morning he was resolved to send W. H. Collins, the auto driver to cover the ground carefully and look for traces of the party. At 4 o'clock no report had been received.
